

Know Your Strategy[©]

2 Day Workshop - 19th & 20th December 2017

By: Salah Uddin

Overview:

Not all businesses get their Strategy right straight away. There are inherent weaknesses & core rigidities within an organisation for various reasons. A Strategy should be a game plan to remedy these weaknesses so that companies don't falter and suffer their impact too greatly. Strategies should look at future risks and help develop ways in which they can overcome these obstacles. A well-defined business Strategy should guide, not only on how your business is performing internally but also, how you are performing against your competition and what you need to do to stay relevant into the future. Thus, a well-designed Strategy is fundamental to the success and sustainability of any organisation. However, in most companies, Strategy making is the purview of the top management team only. While the C level circle in a company takes pride in being the architect of their company's plans, at times even the managerial level, the middle & junior management is unaware about the intricacies of how a Strategy is evolved, thus resulting in an outcome which could have been better had the team been part of Strategy building exercise.

This workshop is thus devised with the more recent concept of involving a wider community exercise for designing a company's strategy, deploying the team, lest the Strategy is rendered rudderless with a change in the top management. The premise is that ideas if drawn from a larger, diverse pool, giving the managers / middle & junior managers a voice, can boost their commitment to the company Strategy rather than in a centralised organization. Hence the need for an open strategy via participation and inclusion, for a sustained competitive advantage.
